

Reconciliation Artwork

Westernport Water is inviting suitably experienced local artists to create a private artwork to be used to promote its reconciliation and recognition work on printed or digital documentation.

About the opportunity

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artists are invited to submit design concept ideas for an innovative and engaging creative artwork that represents the Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Island culture of the Bass Coast region.

The art will be featured throughout Westernport Water's Innovate Reconciliation Action Plan and be reproduced to promote the work the corporation is doing to deliver the plan.

The successful candidate must create a piece of art that incorporates traditional ecological knowledge, the local environment and water.

Remuneration

The successful candidate will receive $4,000 on completion of the artwork. This fee is to cover all costs associated with creating the artwork including materials, labour, fabrication, artist's fee, etc.

To enable greater participation, up front financial support may be provided for the purchase of raw materials required to produce the artwork.

Process / timeline

1. Expression of Interest – (9-23 March) (Artist develops design concept/ideas)
2. Design concept/ideas reviewed by selection panel (24-27 March)
3. Outcome notification - Commissioning of successful artist (30 March)
4. Artworks created (30 March - 30 April)
5. Delivery of artwork (Monday 30 April)
6. Launch of art and Westernport Water's Reconciliation Action Plan. (Week commencing 27 May 2020).

Local resident of Bass Coast from Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander descent	5

Selection panel

A selection panel will determine its preferred artist using the selection criteria detailed in this document.

The selection panel will consist of representatives from Westernport Water's Board, Reconciliation Action Plan Working Group and a local artist.

Notification and selection

The preferred artist will be notified by Westernport Water once the selection process has been completed. All respondents will be notified as soon as possible after the final decision.

Westernport Water's RAP Working Group Chair, Geoff Russell, will be the Project Manager for this art initiative, and is the artist's primary point of contact.

Commissioning and Copyright

Concept Copyright

The artist will retain the intellectual property and copyright of the concepts they have proposed as part of the EOI process.

Commissioning

A Commissioning Agreement will be developed between the successful artist/team and Westernport Water, and will ensure there is a clear understanding of all facets of the project. The agreement will be based on the Commissioning Agreement: Private or Commercial Visual Artwork from Arts Law Centre of Australia.

Project Acceptance, Ownership and Copyright

Westernport Water will accept and take ownership of the artwork once it has been completed.

The legal title and copyright of the work will be outlined in the agreement between the artist and Westernport Water.

The contract will provide licence for Westernport Water to have unrestricted and culturally appropriate use of the artwork provided that the name of the artist, title of the work and date is acknowledged.

Additionally, Westernport Water will require the artist not to reproduce the exact artwork for any other party.

Submission & applicant requirements

Submissions

Interested artists should apply by 2pm Monday, 23 March 2020. Please ensure you provide the following with your application:
